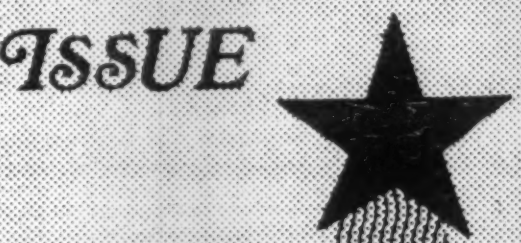
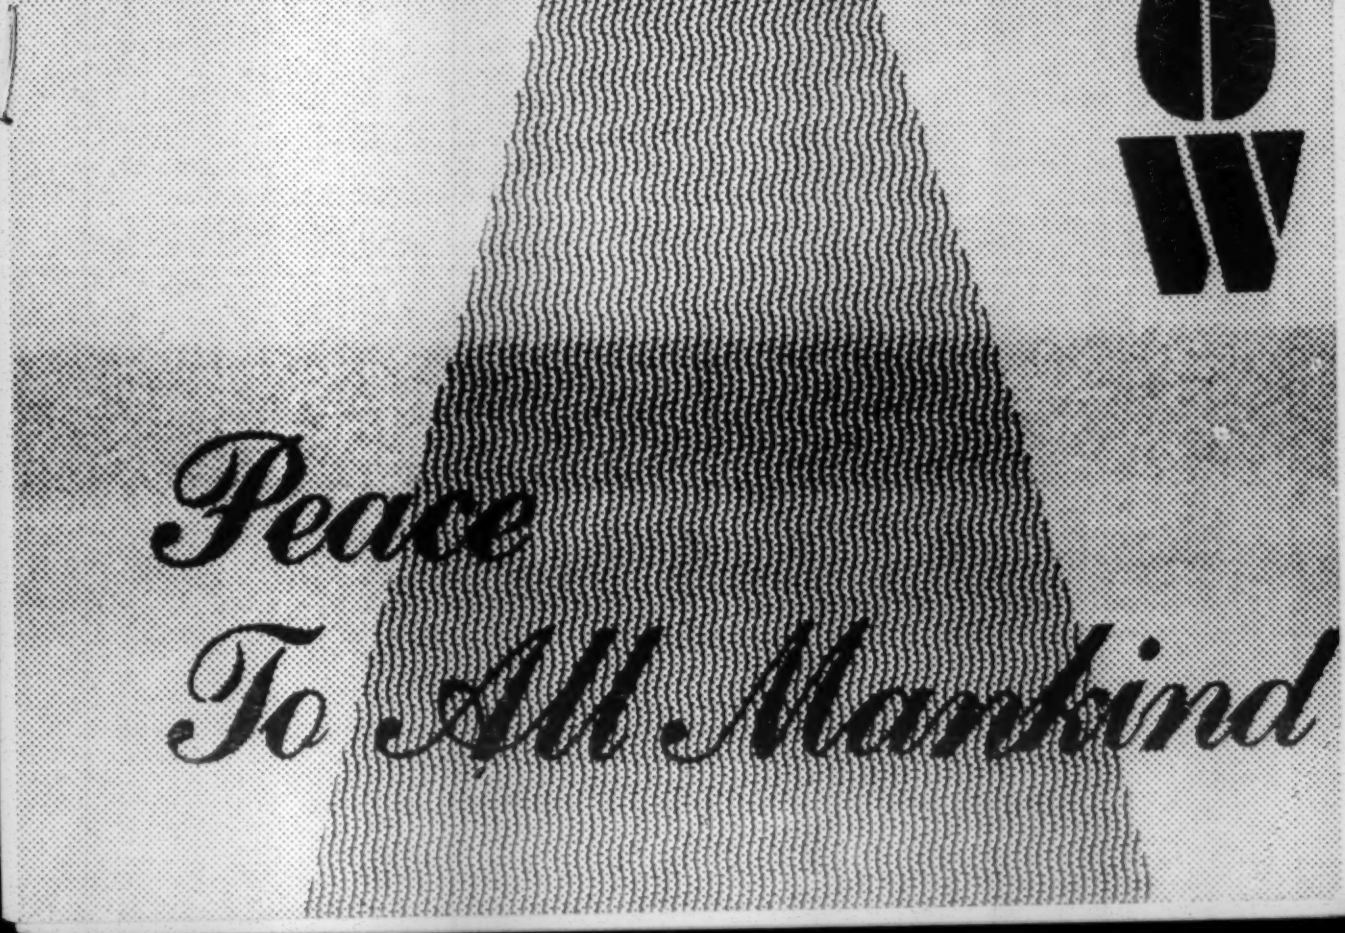
SPECIAL CHRISTMAS ISSUE





Peace To All Mankind

Timelessly Timed Prophecies

Anthony Benik

The following predictions were given to me by my Guru [illegible] Lamasery and which I was not to open until April 1, 1970. As you read these predictions, you will realize that some of them are NOW coming to pass. The reader is advised that the predictions are not in any special order or category. Those below are only a token listing; there are many more that have not been deciphered, since the original text of the letter progressed into more ancient Sanskrit. As these other predictions are translated further, they will be published.

1. The Nation, under the Star of David, shall cease to exist as a Nation.
2. Great geographical changes will unfold throughout the world.
3. The Nation, symbolized by the Great Eagle, shall suffer internal strife which will be recorded in history as the Dark Upheaval. Its people will be confused but patient with its cubs. A Spiritual Truth will come forth and make the Great Eagle truly great above all Nations. Its power, influence and love of Spiritual freedom will bring many Nations into its sphere of greatness. [Note: I have interpreted the 'Great Eagle' as the United States and 'its cubs' as the NOW generation.]
4. Mankind will come very close to self-extermination by toxins. It is caused by man and may be corrected by man — IF he so desires. If he does not make corrections, the Law of Nature shall prevail.
5. The Spiritual Unity of All Religions will manifest.
6. Mankind shall discover his true heritage and his greatness will unfold before his very eyes ... and he shall see and comprehend all Wisdom of the ages. The Prince of Peace and Love shall rule forever more.
7. The Nation, symbolized by the Maple Leaf and the Nation symbolized by the Great Eagle shall join with each other in unity as one Nation.
8. The signal of the beginning of these times shall be when the land of many elephants shall join itself to other Nations in war against the flag of scarlet. [Note: I went through many reference books which might refer to the Nation as "the land of many elephants". In seven out of ten books, Cambodia was listed as "the land of many elephants".]
9. A sign shall come from the Western sky announcing the beginning of the end of all wars, forever.
10. The arrow of Ameneshnah shall pierce the sky and open it wide. The second sign of all Peace shall be upon us.
    [Note: Ameneshnah, in Laotian, or I should say Llama Lore, is believed in as a great messenger of God, not unlike the Angel Gabriel, who split open the sky for the sign of Jesus with The Star of Bethlehem.]
11. The stone cat of the desert shall reveal its standing legs and lost knowledge and wisdom shall come forth from them. The first to unlock the ancient doors shall be three men, each from a Nation of Love and Peace, and each of a different race.
12. The Lion of God shall rule his land with greater wisdom and understanding. God's Grace will shower him abundantly. The sign shall be when the star and the crescent moon shall stop sharing her wealth from beneath the sand, and this same sand shall overwhelm her star and crescent moon and bury her in the sands of time forever.
13. The breadth of the Universe shall reveal itself to mankind in all its beauty. Its sign shall be when the Stars are all moved within the span of the right hand, from left to right, and the Earth shall groan and wail for thirty score and four years.

Editorial

Peace is not a form of thought or a way of thinking. It is the very spirit of everything. It is a spiritual thing. It is felt from within the soul, and it goes forth as an emanation from the soul.

Peace is a very positive force. It is purposeful, and sure and dynamic in action. There is no mistaking its strong and forceful action. Peace touches and sooths the jangled thought of man, especially the seeker on the path. Even the word "peace" spoken by a person who has peace within his stature, releases a strong and forceful movement that brings forth the very essence of the word.

Peace represents calmeness, repose; freedom from war or hostilities, people not being quarrelsome the consciousness of peace is a medicinal agent. To the weak, it brings help. to the one who is excited and overwrought it brings calmeness and restfulness. To the one who is discouraged and alone, it brings sweet repose. To all it gives a new strength and a new hope and fresh determination.

One who is possessed of peace is a steadying influence on the community; his presence acts as a balancing to all within the area of his influence or aura. Each and every one he comes in contact with feels the presence of this gift. The man of peace is one every one wishes to come to know and be around. The man who possesses peace has a glow from within. A presence that shows to even the non-peaceful.

People delight to shop in a place pervaded by a sense of peace; they take time in shopping, they linger to enjoy and purchase. People are attracted to a place that brings forth and displays the feeling of peace. At Christmas peace prevails among all, but sadly and alas, it does not continue. Indeed, the delights and advantages of peace far outweigh the false glories and thrills of competition and strife.

The cure for inharmony, discord, and disease, in mind, body and surroundings is the re-establishing of a sense of peace in consciousness. This cure can come about by realizing the truth that man is the offspring of God, and that therefore he is ever in the presence of peace.

The Birth of Christ and The Priestess

Rev. Anthony Benik

You know, the Christmas Story, as it is related today, is so misconstrued, so misunderstood, that even the fact that Mary and Joseph were turned away at the Inn in a mean way is untrue. It was done for their protection. If you only use common sense and read past histories, you will find that the Messiah was foretold in all religions at that time. They knew that He was coming. The Magi of the East knew He was coming ... but not on what date. It was summer. The Essenes knew that information. The people who owned the inn had a daughter. The daughter was very close to Josie, the temple priestess. She would bring information back to her parents of the coming of the Christ and who the parents would be. This knowledge spread amongst the trusted throughout the land so that Mary and Joseph would be protected ... for the inn was full. Room was prepared for them, but, with the soldiers searching, they could not be brought into the inn where they would be found. This is why they were taken to the cave. The soldiers would not think of looking for the Messiah to be born in a cave, let alone a manger. Josie knew of this; she knew of the events before anyone in the temple did. She had charge of all the Sacred Rites in the temple. She was a prophetess and close to God.

Another thing that people have misinterpreted and have read wrong meanings into Christianity is that the Truth of Christianity had spread throughout the world on its own accord. THIS IS NOT SO! It was because of the persecution of the Christians (the brethren) that spread Christianity. The brethren were forced to disperse themselves and their communities and to go into other lands. They took their own religion, beliefs and teachings and their knowledge, with them. THIS forced dispersement was the beginning of the spread of Christianity.

The Celebration of the Christ

by Roy Eugene Davis

"I am come that you might have life; and have it more abundantly!" Wherever the spirit of the Christ Consciousness is allowed to express, there is life more abundant. This is a fact; a truth. Why is this so? Because the Christ is the active-intelligence of the Godhead and wherever This is allowed to express, there is fullness.

December 25th is the accepted date for the remembrance of Jesus Christ (Jesus, who was the embodiment of Christ Consciousness) and for the celebration of his advent on this plane. Historical data is minimal regarding the life of Jesus; his impact, however, has been dramatic and far-reaching — not so much because of what he did, but because of what he expressed. As far as we know, the earthly sojourn of Jesus was of short duration; the Christ spirit working through those who came after him has infiltrated the consciousness of the planet and the hearts of men for almost twenty centuries. Jesus the man said, "It is not I, but the Father who sent me, who does these works". I am sure Jesus would be the last to ask us to worship him as a personality. He always turned people's attention to the Source; to the Power and Intelligence which, alone, has the responsibility of regulating universal activity.

According to mystical interpretation of the Christian scripture, the Christ Consciousness is the second aspect (person) of the Trinity. The Godhead contains within itself three characteristics: Existence; Consciousness-Intelligence; and Creative Energy. This is the same as Sat, Chit, and Ananda in Vedic scriptures. Sat means truth, or existence; Chit means consciousness-intelligence; Ananda means bliss, and describes the perception of flowing energy. (There is a deeper bliss, which is the result of the perception of Reality.) Out of God everything flows into manifestation, under the intelligent direction of the Christ Consciousness. Creative energy flowing into expression is perceived as the Amen (Om, Aum), or the Holy Spirit which enlivens creation. The true song of God is Aum, which ever continues to vibrate within the Godhead itself. It calls all devotees back to the Godhead through Christ Consciousness. It is literally true that when we are "born again" and awaken to the perception of the eternal Amen we are led back to our true abode. "None cometh unto the Father, except by me." No one experiences the final truth, the Existence aspect of the Godhead, without flowing through the Christ Consciousness. This is a necessary pattern of experience.

Krishna Consciousness is identical with Christ Consciousness; one who is anointed of of the Christ aspect of the Godhead is referred to as being of the Christ (Krishna) consciousness. I learned "this most ancient secret" from my guru, Paramahansa Yogananda, during during the brief few years I was privileged to practice yogic disciplines under his guidance. He opened my vision and showed me how to look upon life from a universal standpoint. Unfettered by mental-emotional restrictions, the deathless masters of the ages reveal to seekers the true nature of things and events.

The mystical celebration of the Christ Consciousness is, therefore, for all persons regardless of their professed religious opinions. Mental convictions have to do with thinking-emotional patterns which are accepted because they lend a temporary promise of security. Higher than conviction is realization; direct perception of the truth about the Life Process. Life is a series of connected parts; life is One Thing (God) expressing as all that we see and all with which we deal.

Christ Consciousness is like this. Wherever we go, whatever we do, Christ is ever-present because God's intelligence is ever-acting and ever-expressing. This is why the celebration of the Christ is so very useful to all of us. When we think of the exemplary life of Jesus we are inspired anew and drawn into a closer relationship with God. There is something more: when millions of people on planet Earth turn their attention to the example of Jesus (whatever their understanding may be) there is an uplift of energy and a clearing of consciousness which tends to turn all of mankind to the Real Source.

Let us, during this current celebration of the Christ Consciousness, become so absorbed in the Divine Presence that we become uplifted from human consciousness to the realization of the transcendental aspect of the Godhead. Let us then release this transcendental creative energy unto all the world, so that the spirit of Christmas rules supreme!

A CHRISTMAS SONG

"As yuletide comes to us this year,
With loyal love and joyous cheer,
A Christmas song we sing again --
Of peace on earth, good will to men.
Let all who know for what it stands,
Thrill to the clasp of friendly hands;
And feel true kinship with The Man,
Who gave His best, as others can,
To end the wanton waste of life,
In wars of greed and wicked strife --
By teaching men to find release,
From all that's wrong and live in peace."

The Metaphsical Meaning of Christmas

by

Rev. Kingdon L. Brown

Christmas. The magical season which brings us new vibrations of anticipation. God's wonderment mystically combines with a baby's birth and destiny. It is a perfect time for sharing love and the Blessings of life.

Yet, Christmas has a deeper significance for the metaphysical student on the Path to new consciousness in a new age.

Christmas represents time for reflection, a time to wait, to observe and watch. New Guidance and healing come to the metaphysical student during this season. The example we set for ourselves may carry us through the entire new year. Gone must be past mistakes, broken promises, other souls wounded and hurt by our harsh rejections.

For the metaphysical searcher Christmas represents a time for paying off bad karma and starting with a clean slate of new strength and aspiration. For we psychically attune with all Christmas times, past and future.

We know that God's uniqueness, His Creation, and His Spirit is the animation of the universe. And, we are receptive to the Cosmic Operation of protection and gentle renewal.

The destiny of all souls, of human kind, stands before us as we peek through the barriers of the conscious mind and see the Infinite Intelligence in all life.

Christmas shows us that we live not for self, but for all. We are not separate, individual entities clawing our way along the evolutionary ladder. We are part of a vast consciousness moving closer to God's illumination. And, the baby Jesus sets the mood, the tone, and the attitude for us.

In His face, and in His cries and tears, and joys, we see ourselves as we begin the universal journey anew.

And, since slumber prepares us for a new day, perhaps the meaning of Christmas is best summed up by: "A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL, AND TO ALL A GOOD NIGHT "

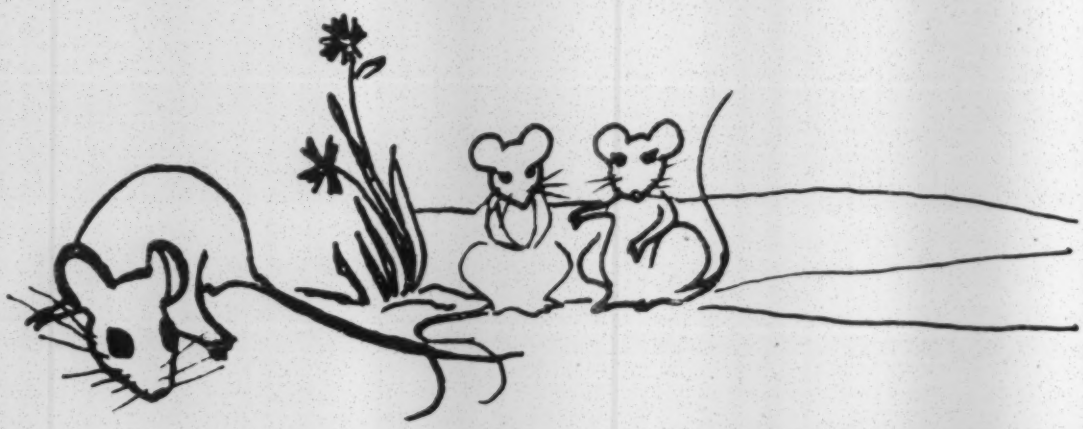
Roger The Green Mouse

by John White

ONCE UPON A TIME there was a green mouse. His name was Roger, and he lived in a forest at the edge of a pretty meadow. The reason he lived in the forest was so he wouldn't be seen by the other mice. They were all brown mice, and whenever they saw Roger they laughed at him and chased him and called him names. "O Roger!" they would say in mousetalk. "You're not brown like us. You're green and you look so silly!"



Poor Roger! He felt very sad because the other mice teased him and wouldn't play with him. They weren't nicemice — they were meanmice. So Roger hid in the forest where he wouldn't be seen. But he stayed near the edge of the meadow to watch the other mice while they played. And as he watched them, he wished he could do something so that the other mice would like him. He thought and thought, but he just couldn't think of anything to make the brown mice his friends.

All summer Roger lived in the forest, feeling lonely. Then one day a very strange thing happened. He heard an awful squeak, followed by a crash. When he ran to see what it was, out of the bushes walked a red mouse.

"O, my goodness!" squeaked Roger. "You're a red mouse. What happened to you?"

The red mouse said, "I was almost eaten by a hawk. I was on the other side of this meadow watching the brown mice play. All of a sudden a hawk flew down and caught me. But I fought hard up in the air and got away. I'm sure lucky I landed in those bushes."

"You certainly are," said Roger. "Are you hurt?"

"No, I'm not hurt," the red mouse said. Then it asked, "What's your name?"

"My name is Roger. What's yours?"

"My name is Emily."

"Emily?" squeaked Roger. "You're a girl! And you live in the forest just like me."

"O, do you live here?" Emily asked.

"Yes," Roger answered. "But I don't like it. I want to live in the meadow with the brown mice, but they always chase me away because I'm green." Then Roger thought for a minute and asked, "Did they chase you away too?"

"Yes," said Emily. "They chased me away because I'm red."

"Well, don't worry," said Roger. "I won't chase you away. I'm glad to have company. And besides, Emily, I think you're very pretty. I've never seen such beautiful red fur."

"Thank you, Roger," Emily replied. "I think you are very handsome, too. I would be happy to stay here with you."

So Roger and Emily were mousemarried. They lived in Roger's cozy little nest among the roots of a tall oak tree. And they were very happy because they had each other for company. Emily fixed up the mousehouse with pretty leaves, and they didn't even think of meadowmice. They just played all day in the forest.

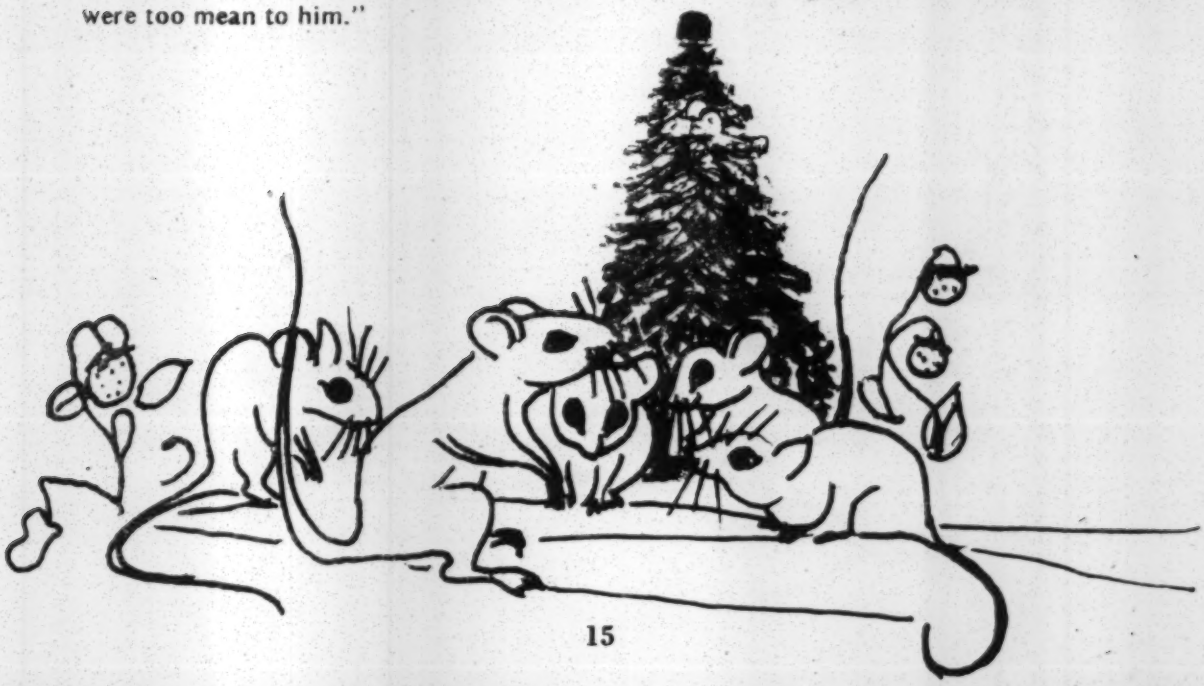
Summer ended and the weather began to get colder. One day Emily said, "Roger, dear, I have a surprise for you. Guess what? We're going to have some babies soon."

When Roger heard that, he felt so happy that he jumped up and ran out of the nest right into the meadow. He didn't think of why he had to live in the forest. He didn't think of what happened to him whenever he went into the meadow. He was just so happy that he ran. And as he ran he shouted, "Going to have some babies! Going to have some babies!"

The meadowmice were so surprised when Roger ran by that they didn't even try to tease him or chase him. They just looked at each other and wondered about his strange behavior. One of them said, "Do you think Roger went crazy because he was all alone? Maybe we were too mean to him."



But Roger wasn't crazy — he was just happy. So he kept on running all the way back to his nest, and when he got there he gave Emily a nice whiskerkiss.

Then winter arrived and snow fell. Emily said the babies would be born soon, so Roger stayed at home with her except to go out for food. One evening Roger went outside to find their dinner. He hopped and scurried through the snow till he came to the edge of the forest. In the middle of the meadow he saw something which made him stop and look. It was a beautiful tree, shining with lights and tinsel and pretty bulbs. Roger thought he had never seen anything so lovely.

All the meadowmice were gathered around the tree, staring at it. They didn't notice Roger walk up to the tree. An old mouse said, "I saw people putting it here. I guess it must be for us. I wonder why they did it?"

Roger heard the question. He thought of Emily and the babies and he thought of them being teased by the meadowmice later on. When Roger thought of that, he decided he had to speak up and answer the question. He felt very afraid inside, but he wanted his family to have a happy life, so he took a deep breath and said, "I think I know why."

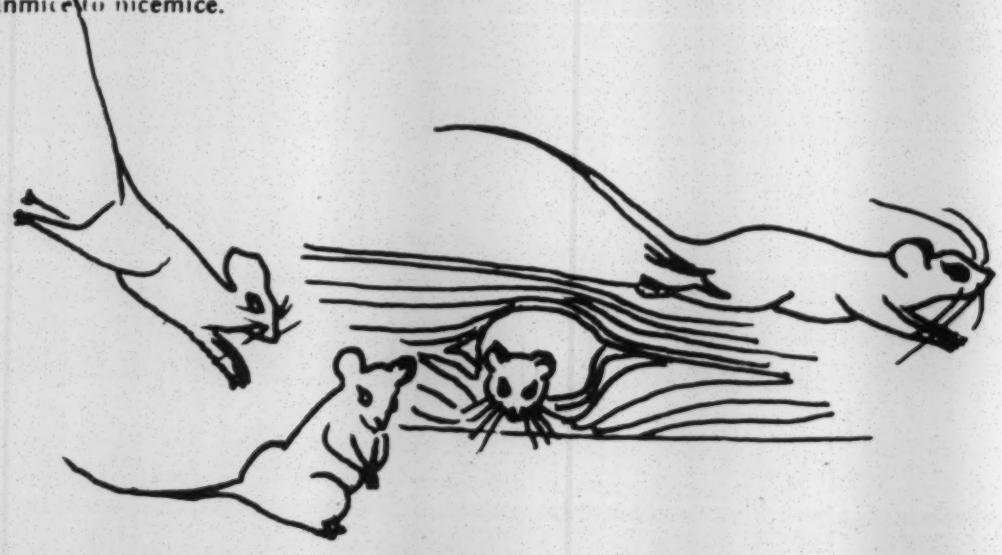
The meadowmice turned around in surprise and looked at Roger. His heart was beating fast because he expected them to act as they always did before. But this time they just watched Roger quietly. So Roger took another deep breath and continued speaking. "I think they put the tree here to tell us that we ought to live without fighting or being mean. At least, that's the way I'd like it to be."

When Roger said that, the mice remembered the way they used to tease Roger and chase him and call him names. They remembered the way Roger used to watch them from the forest with a sad, lonely look. And as they remembered it all, they hung their heads and felt ashamed.

Then the old mouse who had asked the question looked at Roger and said, "Roger, you're right. We shouldn't have been so mean to you. I'm really sorry, Roger. Will you forgive me and be my friend?"

"Yes, Roger," said another. "Please don't be mad at us any more. We're ashamed of of being so mean to you."

Then all the other mice started apologizing to Roger. They said how sorry they were for teasing and chasing him and calling him names. Roger could hardly believe what he had heard. He had been alone in the forest for so long, trying to think of how to make the brown mice like him. But he never could think of a way. Then when Emily showed up, he was so happy that he forgot to think about it. And now, without even trying, the mice were being friendly to Roger, just because he had been brave. By being brave, he had made the brown mice see how wrong they were to be mean. And that changed them from meanmice to nicemice.



"Come on, Roger," a mouse shouted. "Let's play tag. You're it!" Soon Roger was running around the meadow with the brown mice, laughing and playing as he had always wanted. He was having a wonderful time.

Suddenly he remembered Emily. "O my goodness!" he squeaked. "I forgot about Emily. I've got to go home and see if the babies are here yet."

"What babies, Roger?" asked the mice. But there was no answer because Roger was scampering through the twilight to his nest in the oak tree.

"What a strange way to act," said a mouse. "It's just like the day he ran through here shouting about babies. I wonder who Emily is?"

Then another mouse said, "I remember Emily. She's the red mouse who got caught by a hawk. Remember that day we saw her fighting with him in the sky? She fell into the forest about where Roger lives."

Then the mice started wondering if Roger really did mean what he said about babies. "Do you suppose Emily wasn't killed?" one said. Another said, "What if Roger met her and they got married? Maybe Emily is his wife. Maybe she's going to have some babies. soon. Come on. Let's go see." But by then it was too dark to see, so they decided to meet by the pretty tree in the morning and then go to find Roger.

The next day all the mice came squeaking and chattering through the snow. As they hopped along, one mouse said, "Roger wouldn't lie to us. I'll bet there really are some babies. I wonder what color they'll be?"

When they got to the edge of the forest, they called, "Roger, where are you?" Soon Roger hopped out. He seemed very happy and excited, but he just put his paw in front of his mouth and went "Shhh" so the mice would be quiet. Then he said, "Listen, everyone. I want you to be quiet because the babies are sleeping.

The mice looked at each other and nodded their heads. "See," said the mouse who had spoken before. "I told you he wasn't fooling. There really are babies. Tell us about them, Roger. May we see them?"

"Sure," said Roger. "There are two boys and two girls. They were born last night and their mother is Emily. I met her last summer after she got away from a hawk. You used to tease her because she has red fur, but when we met we were so happy that we forgot about being mad at you. Now the babies are here and we love them very much. Come inside and see them."

So the meadowmice started in, one by one, to look at the babies. But as soon as the first mouse had looked, he ran back to the door and whispered to the others, "They're brown! They're brown, just like us!"

The other mice were amazed. How could a red mouse and a green mouse have babies that were brown? None of the mice could explain it. They didn't know that red and green make brown, just like when red and green paint are mixed. Roger and Emily didn't know

LET THERE BE PEACE ON EARTH

Let there be peace on earth,
Let it begin with me.
Let there be peace on earth,
The peace that was meant to be.
With God as our Father,
Brothers all are we.
Let me walk with my brother,
In perfect harmony.

Let peace begin with me,
Let this be the moment now.
With every step I take,
Let this be my solemn vow.
To take each moment and live each moment
In peace eternally.
Let there be peace on earth,
And let it begin with me.

The Season of Emergence

by David Spangler

As this issue of HERE & NOW celebrates the festival of Christmas, I am reminded of a radio announcer in Phoenix, Arizona, where I once lived, who every year would talk about the continuity of Christmas. It was more than a day, he would say; it was a spirit of sharing and fellowship and love that needed to be kept alive and active throughout the year, giving us 365 Christmases. Only in this way, he felt, could we begin to deal with the many problems in the world. To remind his listeners of this idea, he began making the 25th of every month a sort of remembrance of the Christmas Spirit and of its timeless applicability.

For many people, our civilizations seem to be shadowed by the onset of a planetary autumn, preceding the winter of a new Dark Age. There is a pessimism abroad in this time of political upheaval, global economic crisis, pollution, institutional decay, shortages and wars. Many of our sensitive individuals reflect this feeling through the prophecies which they deliver. Like Scrooge, we are haunted by the ghosts of our past and present and the spectre of a future ending in disaster; our age seems to turn from Christmas into a Halloween that offers many tricks but few, if any, treats. Heroic efforts are called for, but heros seem in short supply. Where are the champions of humanity?

Many others, though, see this time differently. It is indeed a Christmas season, a time of rebirth and renewal, when a new spirit is moving through our world and a new consciousness is being born. These are the people who believe in the New Age, the dawning of a new era for humanity arising out of the darkness of confrontation and transformation. Like the ancient Druids who knew that the seeming death and stillness of winter really allowed for a greater manifestation of the subtle, informing spiritual life behind all form, these individuals see a powerful Light and Presence at work within our societies, perhaps more so than at any previous time in history. More importantly, those who truly understand this image know that they are the embodiments of that Presence; it is through their lives and efforts and demonstrations that this New Age will begin to have creative impact. Their lives become a Christmas season-in-action, and in this, they are responding to the same need and solution which my Arizona radio announcer used to speak about.

In keeping with the spirit of the season, I would like to present three gifts to all who are trying to make the promise of Christmas a reality in our world. These are three words which, to me, catch the flavor of the New Age: Wholeness, Synergy and Emergence.

Wholeness is, according to metaphysical tradition, a fact in creation. All things are interrelated and blended from the smallest particles of matter to the ultimate communion of relationship which is God. So fundamental is this concept to the New Age idea that it is the [illegible] of any esoteric teaching, the starting point, the basic premise. It is assumed that it is only a matter of time, training, disciplines, revelation and illumination until we experience the fact of wholeness, and it is the goal of nearly every metaphysical and growth technique that I know of. Many people believe in it, some people understand it, a few people have actually experienced it. Fewer still make it the absolute basis of all their actions, and these people we say are motivated by universal or divine love and the spirit of God.

Unfortunately, these are all words which are open to different meanings and interpretations, and the experience of wholeness as a spiritual or mystical phenomenon is not easy to achieve. The reason for this, though, may well be that too much verbal and conceptual glamor surrounds this concept. It has become a goal, an end in itself, a desirable experience rather than being the natural ground of our being from which everything else proceeds. We think of wholeness as a mystical event rather than as a whole experience involving every part of our lives, thus setting it apart from us as something to be achieved within a realm different from this one in which we function most of the time.

In the Seventeenth Century, the French philosopher Rene Descartes proposed his theory of the division of creation into the things of the mind and spirit and the things of form, body and extension. This "Cartesian split", as it is now called, fitted well with the Christian teaching of the physical world being of the devil and the soul belonging to heaven. The result has been a fundamental mind set in Western culture that thinks in terms of irreconcilable dichotomies, such as mind and body, spirit and matter, and so forth. In our spiritual and metaphysical philosophies this has created various tensions and oppositions, even to the point of seeing the physical universe as unreal and only a projection of Mind. This may be true in some way, but not according to any definition of mind that we have yet developed, for mind as we know it is itself an aspect of something else far more subtle and very blended with the phenomenon of matter.

Though wholeness is the basis of most metaphysical doctrines, these same doctrines usually perpetuate the Cartesian split between higher and lower selves, mind and body and so on, thus negating the essence of wholeness. Wholeness is needed in our world; to achieve it we must understand its reality very clearly and each begin to do the work on personality, physical, emotional, mental levels to integrate himself and see himself not as several levels in conflict or competition but as one being who is a point of synthesis weaving into oneness the various elements that enter the field of his life.

This means work on conceptual levels (examining and changing beliefs that promote inner and outer division) and on behavioral levels (in relationship with others). It means gaining an understanding of synergy. Synergy is a concept of energy exchange between two or more people or systems in which everyone is benefitted. In a social setting, it is the state in which the action of the whole and the action of the individual each contribute to the fulfillment of the other. It is wholeness in action. It is mind, body and emotions working to create a relationship that benefits each yet reveals and affirms the wholeness of the individual's identity, which is more than just the sum of its component parts of expression. Synergy is two people — in marriage, partnerships, families, work — creating relationships that fulfill them each and reveal a third presence or energy acting through the identity of the relationship itself, an energy neither could have embodied alone. Synergy is many people working together, creating groups, societies, nations, a world, revealing a wholeness that is greater than the sum of its parts, a wholeness expressed such that no part is simply swallowed up or manipulated to its detriment but is fulfilled by and within the same actions that fulfill the whole.

Synergy is also a description of the Spirit of God, the relationship which we can have with the wholeness of the universe. Jesus discovered such a wholeness and expressed its presence within himself and in his relationships; he manifested synergic divinity, God and Man co-creatively blending to reveal their essential wholeness. Because of this, we celebrate his birth at Christmas, the festival of the Seed Identity behind creation which he so skillfully manifested. This relationship of wholeness is not really mystical or miraculous. We all experience it, for it is the relationship between our tissues and organs that create health. It is a natural universal expression that permits combinations of things to be built up into ever greater levels of complexity and manifestation, demonstrating more clearly the wholeness that is behind all things. We might call love synergy in action.

Behind this force is another I call the energy of emergence. This is the pressure of self-unfoldment that always seeks to move from states of lower to higher potentials of expression, like the energy within a seed that seeks germination and growth. There is never a time when this energy is not working; all of human history is its outgrowth. For this reason, I dislike the term "New Age" because it implies a break with the past, an event of some kind, whereas I perceive that we are unfolding in a continuity of emergence, affecting all areas of human endeavor. The New Age is a human phenomenon, certainly not a metaphysical, spiritual or esoteric one. It manifests from and within the totality of our race and and its connectedness with the universe. It is not the New Age that will bring salvation to our world; it is human beings who are learning to express themselves with greater wholeness and skills of synergy, thus creating vehicles of communication and communion for the emergence of new energies of information, insight and behavior. To paraphrase Pogo, "We have met the New Age, and it is us!"

My radio announcer asked people to take Christmas out of being just a one-day-a-year celebration and bring it into their lives, if the world was to be helped. We who may follow certain metaphysical or spiritual doctrines must do this with the New Age as well, taking it out of the realm of expectation, philosophy and glamor and into the actions and challenges of our everyday affairs. We must be a New Age consciousness, for the New Age is only a state of mind that expresses through us. We must transform Christmas into a celebration of continual emergence of that Life which Jesus demonstrated.

I hope that an understanding of my three little words may do that: Wholeness, an attitude towards oneself that draws our scattered and conflicting levels back together and celebrates our physicalness and our personalities as much as our spiritual and mystical natures; Synergy, an attitude toward others and towards the building of relationships to translate that wholeness into action; and Emergence, the seed of everything, the essence, that always will seek to unfold from within us and from within the synergically based wholeness we create.

With an understanding of what these words imply, we can become the Christmas Season in action, the Season of Emergence of a New Age and a new human planetary experience, fulfilling the promise that this holy time implies. We celebrate Christmas but we can be the birthdays of the Presence of the Planetary Man. In the words of a song I once wrote for our new record album, Winds of Birth,

> The Winds fill the world, a world fresh with dawning,
> Singing in the morning of a new man,
> "Man is being born."

May that birth be the joy of your celebrations and the power of your contribution to the Christmas of our world.

SAN MATEO
CLASSES by DONALD TILLMAN.
The classes will consist of teaching and instruction in the fundamentals of Divine Metaphysics—also, individual Spiritual unfoldment, followed by instruction in the art of meditation. The classes will be designed to bring each student into a closer relationship with his Spiritual Development.
The classes will be limited in size in order to give personal attention and instruction to each student. All students signing up for any of these classes will do so on a 4-week basis.
The hope and aspiration of the teacher, Mr. Tillman, is to bring a purer understanding of the closeness of man's at-one-ment with Infinite Love (God).
Since the classes are limited in size, it will be necessary for students to register in advance for a 4-week session. Four-week sessions are beginning on Dec. 4, Jan. 8, and Feb. 5. Contact Mr. Tillman at P.O. Box 274, San Mateo, Ca. 94401, or (415) 344-9600 as soon as possible to reserve the series in which you wish to enroll.

SEASONS GREEETINGS

And every day is Christmas if you listen
To the voice of God within you.
Not long ago and far away
But here and now Christ is born - -
In you, in me.

And this is the miracle of incarnation - -
Not that he was a man like us
But that we are gods like him,
Not that he shares our humanity
But that we share his divinity.

that either, but they wouldn't have cared anyhow. They were just very pleased to have four nice babies.

Roger and Emily stood side by side, watching proudly as the meadowmice looked at their babies. Then an old mouse entered. It was the one who first talked to Roger by the pretty tree. When he came in, he started to look at the babies, but then he stopped. He looked at Roger and Emily, and thought a while, and then said, "Listen, everyone. I just thought of something. Yesterday I heard people talking by the pretty tree, and they said that today is Christmas. So that tree for us in the meadow must be a Christmas tree. Or maybe I should say it's a Christmouse tree."

He paused a moment. All the mice were quiet, listening to him, so he continued speaking. He asked, "Did you know there are special colors for Christmas? Well, there are because I heard people say it. The colors are red and green. Now look at Roger and Emily. They're the colors of Christmas. They must be Christmas mice."

The meadowmice were very puzzled. What did the old mouse mean — they were Christmas mice? They looked at Roger and Emily and the babies. Roger was green and Emily was red — not at all like the meadowmice. And yet what pretty babies they had — brown, just like the meadowmice. It was very strange.

"Don't you understand?" asked the old mouse. "Look at them and look at the babies. See? The color of their fur doesn't matter. They're still mice like us. And the babies prove it. I've never seen such beautiful little ones before."

Slowly the mice understood what the old mouse was saying. Slowly they understood that it was wrong for them to be mean to Roger and Emily just because their fur was a different color. They were very quiet, thinking about what the old mouse had said. Just then the babies started waking up. Roger said, "Come on, Emily. Let's take them outside so they can see what the world is like."

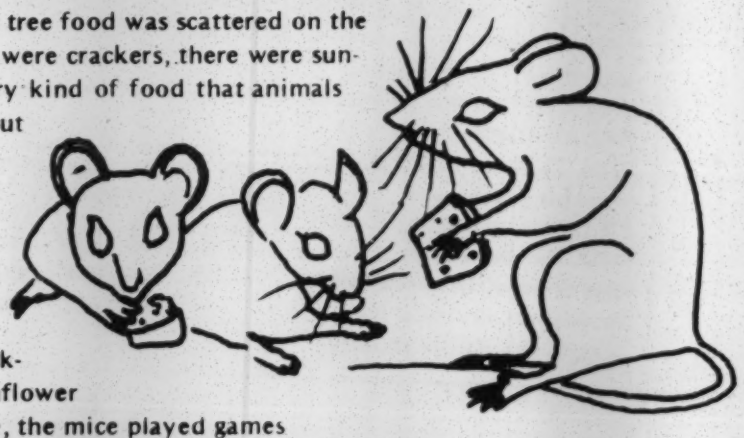
He picked up two of the babies, Emily picked up the other two, and they went outside. When they stepped into the sunlight, the old mouse shouted, "Let's give three cheers for Roger and Emily, the Christmas mice! Hip, hip, hurray!" And all the other mice joined in the cheer, squeaking as loud as their little voices could. Roger and Emily stood together quietly, looking very pleased. Roger thought, "Now I'm sure our babies won't be treated mean the way we were. What a wonderful day this is!"

He held up the babies and said to them, "See, little babies. See what a nice place the world is."

"When there's no fighting and being mean," said the old mouse.

"You're right," said Roger. "Fighting and being mean are no good for us. Everything is so peaceful and nice today. I hope it stays this way all the time. In fact, I wish it was Christmas every day."

"So do I," said a mouse who had just scampered up to the group. "Because I was just at the Christmas tree, and guess what? There's food all around it. Come and see."



It was true. All around the tree food was scattered on the snow. There was cheese, there were crackers, there were sunflower seeds and nuts and every kind of food that animals like to eat. The humans had put it there while the mice were at Roger's nest. When the mice saw all the delicious things for them, they had a feast, stuffing in food until their cheeks were puffed up fat and their tummies were sticking out. And when the last sunflower seed and the last nut were gone, the mice played games and talked and had lots of fun just being friendly to each other. And the ones who enjoyed it most were Roger and Emily, the Christmas mice. They fed little bits of cheese and crackers to the babies and held them up to watch the other mice running around playing.

"O, Roger," said Emily,, "this is so wonderful. I'm glad we're friends with the mice now."

"Me, too," said Roger. "And do you know what? It's because of the babies. That's how we became friends — because of the babies. Isn't that strange? It took some babies to make grownups be nice to each other. Do you suppose that has anything to do with Christmas?"

The old mouse was nearby, and when he heard Roger say that, he just smiled to himself. He remembered hearing the humans talking, so he knew about the baby that came on the first Christmas to stop people from fighting and being mean. But the old mouse didn't say anything. He just smiled to himself because he knew the meaning of Christmas and he knew that Roger was right.

So the old mouse said nothing and the meadowmice kept playing, and Roger and Emily thought of building a nest in the meadow when spring came. And everyone was very, very happy.

Bernadene Predicts

- ★ I see a dark cloud over President Ford which will prevent him from finishing out his term in the White House. Until then he will continue to reap the harvest of animosity and pressures from an unhappy nation - the sad harvest of Richard Nixon's mistakes which will prevent him from properly functioning in office. We will hear a recurrence of Betty Ford's serious problem and her return to the hospital.
- ★ Former President Nixon is still suffering from the tremendous vibrations of hatred aimed at him from millions of people. Concern for Pat Nixon. I feel we will hear shortly about an illness with the former first lady.
- ★ Argentina's first lady Isabell Peron will be in extreme danger during the hoildays. She should out of open cars. Much upheavel and blood shed in her country.
- ★ Within 60 to 90 days the oil industry will once again attempt to victimize Americans by creating gasoline & oil shortages, in an attempt to raise prices. Watch major oil find in weeks.
- ★ Stock market will again go down, within 90 days. It will be 18 months before stabilization.
- ★ John Mitchell will be involved in even more problems in coming weeks. Eventually he will be sentenced to prison. More scandals on political scene. Shocking information revealed.

Here is a book as complex and individual as you are. It's not light reading because it's your life, your astral biography, from the details of your inner feelings to your outermost ambitions.

Sun-Moon polarity, as the connection between conscious drives and unconscious feelings, is discussed at great length.

The ascending sign and its rulership position is interpreted as your personality, as your approach to life. Each house of the zodiac is described in terms of planets, rulerships and aspects.

This is not a vague report based on generalities. From your exact time, day, year and place of birth our IBM 370-155 sorts out 24,000,000 bits of astrological information. The result is a 12,000 word personal biography revealing secrets that even your closest friends would not dare talk about.

How is this possible? An astrologer does basically the same thing, but it takes longer and costs more. The computer is simply a memory bank. Only the information that applies to you and only you is drawn from the bank.

All this is yours for only $10. It's the best buy there is in computerized horoscopes. Plus a money back guarantee if your Astral Portrait isn't what you expected.

Think of it as a reference book, to be studied from time to time. We've got the best available, anywhere, at anytime...and at any price.
